President's Message by Nancy Hull

The warm days of August have provided some lazy afternoons perfect for reading (and napping!), so I've had some time to re-read the questionnaires that you sent in (many thanks again for taking the time to provide feedback).

One of the questions raised was of particular interest.

"Do the Faulkner ingathering volunteers automatically get all or some of their work accepted into the show?" As any ingathering volunteer would tell you, the answer is absolutely NO. Which pieces are accepted or declined is determined only by the juror. During the jurying process, volunteers are directed to refrain from influencing the juror in any way, e.g. by commenting, sighing, or eye-rolling; additionally, the art pieces are identified by number, not by name. The only decision a volunteer would make is to refuse entry to a piece that isn't gallery-ready (not properly wired, the frame falling apart, or the mat dirty) or to something with content not acceptable to the library administration (not for the eyes of young children). The volunteers empathize with your feelings on having your work declined; they're in the same boat you're in, the only difference being that they've worked all or part of a day and still had all or some of their work declined.

During a show at the Faulkner, SBAA makes available, in a set of notebooks on the front desk, member biographies/artist's statements. Because these notebooks have to be transported to and from shows, we ask that you limit your entry to one double-sided page only; also, do not include loose, smaller items like business cards, postcards or show brochures. The notebooks will be available for you to update all through September, our next show at the Faulkner. In other show news, the July 30 take-down at the Faulkner went extremely well, with only one piece not retrieved. Thank you all for that!

At the August 7 board meeting, the Annual General Meeting was discussed, and a sub-committee was set up to investigate options as far as venue, menu, and activities. Also, Jacqui summarized the Membership Report and the Operations Report; a printed version of the latter will be available at ingatherings, or you can request an emailed pdf by calling Cathie Smith and leaving a message. And a decision was made about the Holiday Show (December); this year the maximum price that can be asked will be $400, instead of $300, as in the past.

Lastly, it's my pleasure to introduce to you board member Jennifer Ringer...

"Hello! My name is Jennifer Ringer and have been a SBAA member since the fall of 2014. I joined the Board of Directors in the summer of 2016 as the Social Media Chair where my responsibilities included creating and maintaining the SBAA Facebook page and the website to keep everyone informed of upcoming shows, award winners, and events.

On a personal note, I have been living in Santa Barbara for over ten years. I graduated UCSB with my BA in Psychology in 2011 and have worked for a technology company since 2013. I've always had a passion for art and am often inspired by the beauty of this area. You will often notice my paintings incorporate bright colors and geometric shapes along with dark, bold lines for an almost "stained glass" look. In addition to painting, I also enjoy ceramics. I am the owner and creator of Coastal Moon Art, a small business that sells ceramic planters, magnets, jewelry holders, etc. at local artisan fairs and select shops."
